DEMOCRATIC SAMPSON PULLED PIL. LARS FROM BENEATH THE PARTY.

Defeat Not Attributable to Disapproval of Democratic Principles...Trial of Virginia Train Robbers in Stafford.

The waves that have recently dashed the political sands have teft iniowing hopeful Democratic solu-tors—an intracchism so renearous and acrid as to exclude the belief that ought clase than personal ency, prolosusy and resentment inspired it.

Again the people have risen in their might and by a majority that is without a precedent have swept the Democratic party from power. A faithful ahalysis of this vote in the various sections of the country repels the silly notion that it can be attributed to any disapproval by the people of those principles and measures for which the Democratic party stood. It is apparent beyond dispute that this condemnation of the course of the party in power is by the members of that party alone. It was their absence from the polis, and not the presence in increased numbers of the competitive party that has arhieved this result. It was a sheet expression on the part of the absent members of a want of confidence in those who had been put forward as their representatives in the halls of Congress. It was an eloquent, though silent, protest against those methods which have been used of late to defeat the will of the people by the employment of political machinery. It is not true, as has been in sisted, that organization—without which the power of the masses cannot be made effective—is necessarily mechanical. It is in the highest degree moral. It is by the exercise of the moral powers, the appeal to the highest degree moral, it is by the exercise of the moral powers, the appeal to the highest degree moral, it is by the exercise of the moral powers, the appeal to the highest degree moral, it is by the exercise of the moral powers, the appeal to the highest degree moral. It is by the exercise of the moral powers, the appeal to the highest degree moral. It is by the exercise of the moral powers, the appeal to the highest degree moral. effective—is necessarily mechanical. It is in the highest degree moral. It is by the exercise of the moral nowers, the appeal to the highest and noblest sensibilities of our nature, that the most powerful organizations of men have been formed. It is only by these that such organizations can ever be employed to enforce and effectuate the principles of good government. The mere mechanical organization is time serving, expedient contriving, and looks only to the attainment of immediate and temporary results. The senators, governors and judges, who in these latter days have been snatched from friendly obscurity by the artful employment of the political machines and in delibrate of the wishes of the majority of the people, are only such in fulle and outward seeming, like the weird creation of Frankenstein, that ghastly being without a soul. All such machine-turned puppets must in time turn upon their creators and drive them to remorse, if not to death.

A choomy and depressing season of financial and industrial decay has hung like a pall for many months over the country. Some have referred to this as the cause of the recent vote. To whatever extent the high tariff and other mischlevous Republican legislation may have contributed to this decay, it is useless to inquire when we recognize the fact that it has not been confined to the limits of this continent, but has extended during the same period over the whole civil'zed world. Doubtless it induced a despondent condition of mind- a pessimistic tendency, which inclined many to exaggerate the evil which inclined many to exaggerate the evil which inclined many to exaggerate the evil when distressed them, and dismiclined them to a calm and dispassionate inquiry as to its real cause. However far it may have served as the occasion, it surely was not the cause of Democratic overthrow.

GROUND FOR ENCOURAGEMENT.

We have ground for encouragement in the twice demonstrated fact that the great masses of the people are not governed by mechanical methods, will not be controlled by political bosses, are not open to bribery and purchase, but that they are fully capable of an intelligent and discriminating comprehension of public affairs; they are amenable to some argument, they are amenable to some failen houses.

A Reduction W those a Protest, pitths as citizens. While they are in this awakened condition, before they have received correct and full information, before their convictions have become settled, crafty and selfish men have crept in among them and lured them to the worship of strange gods. Populists, labor parties, sliver parties and many others. But time, patience, fair dealing, and unselfish patriotism will be found to be a most potent leaven that will permeate the entire mass and inure to the triumphant success of those great principles which have sustained the Democratic party and

The Knights were in session nine or ten hours to-day and there is good authority for the statement that press committee have been surpressing facts, and that the real work of the session is not being fully given to the public through the tofficial press committee. There have been many clashes in the meetings, but the committee have striven to suppress information respecting them. The principal business transacted at the evening session, according to the press committee, was the consideration of the cases of fifteen subordinate assemblies which had been suspended and referred to the General Assembly.

Grand Master Workman Sovereign stated that it had been intended to elect officers for the ensuing year to-day, but the election had been deferred to Monday on account of hearing the cases mentioned above.

A Bellef That Salisbury Will Force the Issue_Blake "Talked Too Much"

LONDON, Nov. 17.—That the influence of Mr. Gladstone, despite his retirement from the Liberal leadership, is still paramount in the guidance of the affairs of that party is plainly visible in Lord Rosebery's latest proposal touching the House of Lords. A division of opinion among the members of the Cabinet as to what form the resolution for the abolition of the veto power of the Lords should take, and regarding the most suitable time for the introduction of the question in the House of Commons, led to Lord Rosebery's visit to Hawarden. Acting under the inspiration there obtained, the Premier foreshadowed in his speech at Glasgow the scheme for a second chamber, with a system of conference on disputed matters between delegates from the lower house would largely overbalance those from the Lords. Obviously, the ministers have under consideration some plan which is still too shadowy to permit of its being disclosed. Sir William Harcourt, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Mr. Henry Campbell-Bannerman. Secretion of reform of the House of Lords early in the coming session of Parliament. They urge that the best course to adopt will be to hold the resolution in reserve until the ministry shall be ready for a dissolution.

It is improbable that the Conservative

Lord Salisbury, it is known, is determined to force their hand by passing in the House of Lords immediately after the session shall open a motion affirming the possession by that body of legislative privileges. This will necessitate the introduction in the House of Commons early in the session of a counter-resolution, and will cause a crisis which will make a dissolution imperative. The statement made by Hon. Edward Blake, M. P., for the south dvision of Longford, during his recent visit to America, that Baron Tweedmouth had offered the McCarthyite section of the Irish parliamentary party 2,000 pounds, will be taken notice of by Parliament as an attempt at corruption in the purchase of votes. The members of the Liberal party hold that the sum was offered as a legitimate contribution to the parliamentry fund. The McCarthyites, however, are able to show clean hands, having rejected the offer, and will not afford their enemies any ground for SHUNY WILL FOR EVILL not afford their enemies any ground for scandal, but Mr. Blake's reputation for prudence and reticence has suffered se-

Machi Prizes offered by rennert.

Great uncertainty prevails in English yachting circles regarding the prizes offered by Mr. James Gordon Bennett for the Mediterranean regarta. The official programme gives no information regarding the coormous sums reported to have been given for small raters. One, two and a half rater is being built on the Clyde for P. M. The column of water entered the river frong at the rate of about twenty-five miles and hour. It was followed by another at a distance of about a quarter of a mile. Buth were very large, and they started

PRICE THREE CENTS:

NEW YORK, Nev. 17.—The stormy weather had a damaging effect at Madison Square Garden Concert Hall, when the Frank C. Ives was resumed for the sixth where he left off the night previous, when he reached 3,000, the limit of the fifth block of 600 points.

The game was for 3,000 points, fourteeninch balk line, anchor shot barred. It was for a stake of $5,000 and the net door receipts.

was for a stake of 15,550 and the net coreceipts.

There was a fair crowd present, but the attendance was not nearly as large as on the previous night, Quite a number of ladies were present. The chances of victory were steadily in favor of rives when play was resumed to-night, as he had only 600 points to go, while Schaefer had to make 1,661 in order to win.

IVES BRUAKS THE BLCO. D. The game was opened in a dashing manner by Ives, who took up his unfinished sixty-fifth inning and placed twenty-eight points to his credit. Schaefer then went in, and by handling the cue in a masterly manner made a run of ninety-three, Ives then went in and made a run of oa points, breaking all previous records and making a record of sixty points more than Schaefer's old one of 271, made in a game against Ives in Boston. Some of his shots were marvelous, and, as Schaefer said, one or two of them looked almost impossible. The spectators became wildly enthusiastic over the magnificent display, and it was several minutes before they quieted down.

THE WIZZARD UNNERVED.

THE WIZZARD UNNERVED.

It unnerved Schaefer completely, and he fell down on an easy shot after a run of 13. This was followed by a miss by Ives and another by Schaefer. Then Ives pulled himself together and placed 39 to his credit. Schaefer followed with 38, and Ives came back at him with 29. In Schaefer's fifth inning of the night and seventeenth of the game, he placed but 24 to his credit, while Ives responded with a run of 69. This put Schaefer on his mettle, and in the next inning he did some fine work, placing 101 to his credit. Ives missed after a run of 14, which left him but 90 points more to go. Schaefer made the best of his time, and by the most careful playing made a run of 235, failing on a draw. Ives stopped up after a run of 23. The "Wizard" slipped up on a very easy shot after running up 235 points. Ives then made 23 and missed an easy cushion shot in the lower lefthand corner. Schaefer then gathered the balls in for 21, and falled on an easy draw, leaving the ivories in good position for Ives, who took advantage of the set-up and made a run of 26 and then scored a bad miss.

Schaefer went to pieces in his next and final try, making only 2 points. Ives then got the ivories together and made a run of 41, which gave him the game and match.

When Ives had made his forty-first shot

Schaefer's average, 58 5-13; grand average, 41 40-74.

THE WITNESSES WILL FIGHT. Their Cares Will Be Taken to the Supreme fon t if N cessary. WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Judge Cole, of Criminal Court No. 2, to-day directed that John W. Macartney and Elverton R. Chapman, the recalcitrant witnesses before the senatorial sugar trust investi-Chapman, and the control of the court of a committee, whose demurrers he overruled last fuesday, should appear in court and plead to the indictments. Counsel for Macartney and Chapman will appeal to the Court of Appeals on Monday next from Judge Cole's decision. They will claim that Congress has no power to make a criminal offence the refusal of a witness to testify before a committee, and that Congress has no authority to delegate to the courts power to punish for contempt of either house or of a committee. The attorneys for the defendants say they will carry the case to the Federal Supreme Court on a writ of habeas corpus if the Court of Appeals sustains Judge Cole.
